The Crisis

More than 90,000 dogs and cats are euthanized every year in animal control facilities in metro Atlanta with nearly 4 million put to death nationally due to overpopulation — there just aren't enough homes for all of these animals.

Our Mission

Atlanta Pet Rescue & Adoption (APRA) is a non-profit, volunteer-based, no-kill shelter dedicated to rescuing and rehabilitating dogs and cats so they can be adopted into safe and loving forever homes.

Our Operating Principles

- Retrieve adoptable pets from other shelters or animal control facilities so they can have a second chance
- Accept adoptable pets from owners no longer able or willing to care for them
- Spay and neuter all pets in our program to help combat overpopulation
- Rehabilitate pets by providing medical treatment to the sick or injured as well as training to increase their chances of successful, permanent placement in new homes
- Thoroughly screen adoption applicants before making placement decisions to ensure our pets find responsible, stable and loving new homes
- Educate prospective adopters about our rescue program and the requirements for taking care of pets
- Place pets in suitable homes as soon as reasonably possible so they can start new lives
